

Accommodation

Apartments, hotels, hostels and camp sites

Paris offers a wide range of accommodation, although much of it is not very 'accessible'. The information available about various aspects of accessibility is generally poor. Several of the places that are quite good (in terms of their physical accessibility) are not well placed to link in with accessible transport. Also, since the early 1990s when the last guide was published, parking in Paris has become more difficult and restrictive, as in many other big cities. If you are planning to use a car or minibus, then the parking facilities at your hotel become an important consideration.

It is quite common in Paris for hotels (mainly the less expensive ones) not to have a restaurant, although breakfast is normally provided. The Citadines Apart'hotels and Suitehotels both provide self catering facilities, which may suit some.

Choosing where you stay is likely to result from an assessment of location, cost and accessibility (in the broadest sense). Whatever you decide, it will be a compromise.

There is a 'trade-off' between spending more money in the city centre in less 'accessible' accommodation, and maybe being able to walk or wheel to many of the places you want to visit, or staying further out in better accommodation, and travelling in, by whatever means.

It might even be worth considering using two or three different hotels to make it easier, overall, to travel around and visit the places you want to get to. There is disruption and wasted time when you move, set against the freedom of being able to get around without the need for taxis or public transport.

Another approach to consider is using somewhere close to an 'accessible' bit of the RER and/or to a wheelchair accessible bus route, if it is practical for you to use those facilities

The situation over the provision of adapted rooms for disabled visitors in hotels in Paris is confused. All that appears on the various hotel websites is the information that, sometimes, there are rooms for mobility reduced guests. Usually the website or brochure only says how many such rooms there are.

What it does NOT say is anything about the nature of the adaptations/provisions. It does not say whether there is enough space in the bedroom for a wheelchair user. It does NOT say whether the bathroom includes a wheel-in shower with a fold-down seat. It does NOT say whether the hotel has mobility aids available such as a bathboard, or a frame to put around the toilet to assist someone with arthritis getting up and down. It does not even say, positively, whether the hotel has step-free access to reception, the bar and the breakfast room.

Unfortunately the criteria in the 'Tourisme et handicap' standards adopted by the tourism authorities don't seem to help much in connection with the provision of information about some of these vital details, and in particular whether the hotel has wheel-in showers. Most of the accommodation listed here would not qualify for the Tourisme et handicap label, and yet would be perfectly useable by many disabled visitors.

Nobody that we found has yet used the opportunities offered by the internet for providing photographs of the facilities provided for disabled guests on their website together with a floor plan of the adapted rooms showing the door widths etc. The best write-ups we have found are those of Handihomes (see below), and their descriptive approach and detailed floor plans provide a good guideline for others to follow.

During August 2007 we stayed in six different hotels, booking in as a wheelchair user who needed a wheel-in shower in their bathroom, together with step-free access to the key facilities such as the reception desk and the breakfast room. What happened was that only two of the six met our criteria. One had a walk-in shower with a 12cm high shower tray (suitable for a disabled walker) while three only had a bath in the bathroom, entirely unsuitable for many chair users, and certainly not what we had been promised when making the booking.

The other thing we discovered during this visit was that hotel CPs in Paris are often cramped inside and can involve VERY steep and twisty ramps. This could be an even bigger challenge than the traffic, and we thought that we should share this note of caution to anyone who doesn't like manoeuvring in tight spaces!

Once we had worked our way through a great deal of misinformation, we found that there are ‘accessible’ places to stay in reasonably good locations. These were visited. They include establishments ranging from the cheap and cheerful (but eminently practical) to more prestigious five-star hotels. Our description only provides a preliminary indication of ‘accessibility’. If you have specific requirements, for example relating to the height of the bed or for supports around the toilet or shower, then you need to discuss these directly with the management.

We made extensive researches, WITH the help of the administration of the Accor hotels, to whom we are grateful for assistance. However, we found that nobody inside the hotel group could identify places to stay that provided the option of using a wheel-in shower, nor places that offered the choice of having a double bed or twin beds. We had to find this out directly from each establishment.

During our investigations, we came across hotels with adapted rooms, who did not include these on their website or published information, “because we only have a few rooms and prefer to handle these bookings directly”. Since most hotels do not have adapted rooms, it’s rather difficult to guess as to which additional ones do!

The providers have not generally considered the needs of a disabled person travelling with a carer or friend. Many can only offer ‘adapted’ rooms with a double bed. We didn’t come across anyone who could offer the use of a family room with an adapted bathroom, though a few could offer adjoining/interconnected rooms.

We came across a few hotels that only provided single rooms for disabled guests. This, of course, is fine for many people, and probably arises because in a smallish room it is possible to accommodate a single bed and a chair-user, with an adapted bathroom whereas if there was a double bed, there would be insufficient space.

Some of the cheaper hotels which have two or three adapted rooms advertised on their information brochures only provide something that is very cramped, and which would be impractical for many. Many of these rooms were converted and provided quite a long time ago when the understanding of what is needed was even more limited, but they are still listed and advertised.

There are also the Handihomes apartments, and the Studio apartment which are described in the text. There’s also the Meurice in 75001, in price band E.

There are some ‘accessible’ hotels in the area around the Eiffel Tower, but only a small number right in the centre near the Ile de France. Places in good locations but with baths in the bathrooms (and no wheel-in shower) include Novotel les Halles, and the Citadines Apart’hotels. Note the Hôtel Dieu hotel which is extremely central, but likely to be heavily booked. Its priority is to provide accommodation for the family members of patients in the hospital.

There are also the:

- Hotel Itinéraires, Nanterre
- Suitehotel at Saint Denis Stade (the information about this comes from the Wheelchair Accessible Europe

- website, and it has not been visited by us);
the excellent Mister Bed City hotel further out at Torcy.

Hotels with wheel-in showers

One of the least expensive chain hotels, ETAP, offers adapted bedrooms with a wheel-in shower, but it doesn't even advertise the fact in its brochures nor on its website. We have been told that about 90% of the ETAP hotels have the adapted rooms (which have standard facilities) and normally provide roughly three adapted rooms per 100.

These hotels are basic, and simply provide a bedroom with an ensuite bathroom including a wheel-in shower, and a breakfast room. Nothing else. Each room has a double bed and (an elevated) single bed. The adapted rooms need to be pre-booked by phone, e-mail or letter as the selection cannot be done on-line. Their locations are generally designed for motorists, and there are a number situated near the Périphérique, and outside the central area, although there is one at la Villette. We used the ETAP hotel at Courbevoie near la Défense for part of our stay, and found it to be good value. The wheelchair users in the group managed well with the bathroom, and although it was a little way to the RER station, we were able to use the accessible bits of the system to get into the centre.

The smaller ETAP hotels do not always have staff at reception and may operate an automated entry system. The larger ones have a reception desk which is open for most of the day.

Formule 1 hotels are run by the same company. They are slightly cheaper than the ETAP ones, but the adapted facilities (in the form of toilets and a wheel-in shower) are situated off a public corridor and they are not en suite and attached to the bedroom. Frequently you have to ask for a key to the adapted facilities from reception. In our view, the ETAP hotels offer better facilities for most disabled travellers, and are not much more expensive. Location and availability may in the end be the determining factors when you make your choice.

The bands used in our listing to give a general indication of the price are:

- A up to €80
- B €80-130
- C €130-200
- D €200-400
- E €400+

Prices are for two people staying in a double room and including breakfast.

Some of the expensive hotels may be as much as €500/night, and while a few of these are included, our focus has been on finding ones nearer the budget end of the market with good access.

The measurements included in this data are in cm, and define the size of lifts, bathrooms and step heights.

Lifts are described with D door width, W width and L length/depth.

Bathrooms have D door width, ST side transfer space for the toilet, and SH is the height of the toilet seat.

GF = ground floor or rez de chaussée.

Step height is indicated by [cm] where applicable.

Where we have put in bathroom and other measurements, they are for the room we saw, so if particular aspects are important to you (such as support rails, door widths, a wheel-in shower, side transfer space etc) then check these out with the hotel for the particular room you will use .

Apartments

We list Handihomes first, because the company seems to be setting high standards in terms of both good ‘accessible’ facilities and information, with clear and accurate floor plans on their website.

Handihomes

16 rue Honoré de Balzac, 92330 Sceaux

Tel/fax: 01 49 73 68 40 mobile: 06 72 74 52 67

website: www.handihomes.com e-mail: info@handihomes.com

Handihomes was created by its French and Danish founders to provide accommodation for disabled people wishing to stay in an environment entirely adapted to their needs, either for leisure or business. The company’s aim is to provide anyone with mobility difficulties with suitable and accessible accommodation for short or long-term rental contracts. They have only got three apartments at the moment, but want to be able to offer a wider choice, so hopefully there will be more in the future.

We visited the newest of these apartments, in Montmartre, which was in the final stages of conversion. The specifications in relation to the provisions for disabled users were impressively high, and a lot of thought has gone into the conversions. The information provided on the website is very detailed, including a floor plan. Because the descriptions are so precise, we are confident that all the flats provide good and well defined facilities for a disabled visitor.

We have not attempted to put this accommodation into a price band since the ‘per head’ cost depends greatly on how many people are sharing, and the bigger flats can accommodate eight to ten people, so our formula based on two people staying doesn’t work very well. For groups of people staying, the flats can offer excellent value, alternatively for smaller numbers, they’re very nice places to stay, but maybe a bit pricey. All have a wheelchair toilet and wheel-in shower.

As extras Handihomes can provide medical attention, a nurse, meals, and transport including a helper if necessary. They also provide broadband internet access and the usual home entertainment appliances, including cable TV.

The first two flats mentioned here were renovated in 2005, and the third one in early 2007.

Handihomes Trocadero

10 rue Nicolo, 75016 (1 bedroom, for up to four guests)

This 5th floor, 60m<sup>2</sup> apartment is fully ‘accessible’.

Located near the junction with the rue de Passy, about 500m from the Palais de Chaillot. It is near the ‘accessible’ number 63 bus route which runs right past the Eiffel Tower and through the Left Bank area.

There is a parking place, for which there is an extra charge.

There are three step-free entrances, from the CP, the street or from the area behind. All lead to a lift (D80). In terms of facilities, there are two rooms, plus a fully equipped kitchen. There is an electric adjustable double bed, which may be made into two singles, as well as a double sofa bed. The bathroom has a lowered basin, and contains a wheel-in shower with a shower-chair. Where necessary, the doors are sliding, and all are wider than 80cm.

Handihomes Eiffel Tower

Tour Totem, 57 quai de Grenelle, 75015

(3 bedrooms, for up to eight guests)

Located a short way down the Seine from the Eiffel Tower, the building in which this apartment is situated was the last high-rise tower authorised in Paris and as such offers an exceptional view over the surrounding area. It is on the 22nd floor with an area of 130m<sup>2</sup>. A parking space may be requested at an extra charge.

The ‘accessible’ buses nearby are numbers 88 and 62. Route 88 goes past Montparnasse and finishes at Denfert Rocherau - an ‘accessible’ RER station on line B. Bus route 62 follows a long route in the south of the city running generally parallel to the Périphérique, and to get to the centre, you can change on to a number 38.

The entrance is step free and three lifts (D80) provide access to the apartment, which contains a large living room with sofa bed, two bedrooms with electric double beds, another bedroom with a sofa bed, two bathrooms, a separate toilet, and a fully equipped kitchen. There is a wheel-in shower, with a shower chair in one bathroom and a bath in the other. Where necessary, the doors are sliding and >80cm in width.

Handihomes Montmartre

20 rue Feutrier, 75018 (3 bedrooms, for eight to ten guests)

This is a large first floor apartment with an area of 170m<sup>2</sup> in a modern building. It is on the hillside in Montmartre with its bohemian ambience and history. It has a GF parking space, and a lift (D80 W110 L120). There are three bedrooms plus sofa beds in the lounge. We visited during the final stages of its adaptation to make it 'accessible'. All the doors were wide (>80cm), and there are two bathrooms, one of which had a wheel-in shower. The flat is well adapted, and the full details are on the website now that the conversion is finished. It has a big open plan kitchen. There is ramped access to a small outside garden area. The only very minor snag is that there are two doors to deal with en route to the flat with conventional key locks. With a group of people there should always be someone around who can handle the locks. The location is really good for Montmartre, though you need to be able to cope with the hill! There are shops and restaurants nearby, and we thought that it was excellent.

Another 'accessible' apartment in the 14th

Studio Apartment

49-51 rue Dareau, 75014 (for up to three guests) website: www.globalaccessnews.com/paris\_apartment%2007.htm

e-mail: dira75014@hotmail.com

Located not far from Denfert Rocherau RER station. We are told that this 5th floor 35m<sup>2</sup> open space studio apartment is fully accessible. As the owner uses a powered wheelchair, she's likely to have provided good details and facilities, and there are some pictures on the website.

There is a step free entrance that leads to a lobby with two lifts (D65). It's an open space studio with a fully equipped kitchen; all the usual home entertainment appliances, including cable TV and broadband internet. There's an electric adjustable single bed, as well as a double sofa bed. The bathroom has a lowered basin, and has a wheel-in shower with a shower chair. Bathroom door D80; ST150, toilet SH50.

The apartment is located in a wheelchair friendly neighborhood, and there are a number of accessible buses passing nearby.

The Hôtel Dieu is the oldest hospital in Paris, and has a hotel inside it on

The main hospital entrance is 50m from Notre Dame. To reach the hotel step free, go left from reception/accueil, through the glass doors and then right. Just before the steps, there is a ramp (to the left) W90, to the sous sol/basement. Turn right, following signs to Gallerie B and the cafeteria. Step-free entrance, with three adapted bedrooms on the GF. Room 17 seen with plenty of space. Double bed. Bathroom with a sliding door D80+ ST70 with a wheel-in shower. Shower stool H41 but minimal grab rails.

Two lifts (D75 W100 L140) to get to the breakfast room on the first floor. This is a slight challenge for a chair user since although beautifully designed, it's a bit congested. You may have to ask for one of the tables to be removed.

The UGCP is difficult, as getting in and out is very constricted. There are four surface parking places, including one marked for a BB user, but we don't know whether or not it is possible to reserve this.

The hotel location has some positive aspects as it is only about 150m from the 'accessible' Bibliothèque F Mitterrand line 14 metro station (see comments in Getting around). If the lifts are working you can get to some very useful central stations as well as to Bercy Village on the other side of the river.

Also, some 300-400m away, there are at least two restaurants with wheelchair toilets. These are the Frog and British Library and l'Avenue, both in the ave de France.

Entrance +5 steps with ramp bypass to left. Four adapted GF bedrooms all with a shower. All have double beds. We saw room 20, where the gap between the bed and the wall was only 69cm on each side. It would be possible to create more space on one side by moving the bed. Bathroom D79 with ST140 to the toilet (SH50), and a shower with a fold-down seat, but with a 15cm step/lip to get in. Restaurant and bar on the GF with step-free access. There are also accessible meeting rooms which can be hired. Two lifts provide access to the upper floors.

The hostel has been rebuilt and has an attractive entrance foyer with step free access via a shallow ramp. There are -3 steps to the café/bar bypassed by an open lift on the right. There is a GF lounge area and a restaurant. Three lifts (D75 W130 L135) go to the bedrooms and the first floor restaurant and meeting rooms.

The main part of the hostel has eleven adapted bedrooms, each with four beds and about the most spacious wheelchair toilet (D70+ST70+) and wheel-in shower en suite we've come across.

The basement rooms are all accessible either by lift or by platform stair lifts. A lot of care has been taken to make the place accessible. The facilities for both chair users and disabled walkers are excellent and the only problems are car parking and booking. At busy times it can be booked more than six months in advance. Note that there's a large annexe which is only accessible via 20+ steps, so make sure that your booking is in the main building if that's a problem.

Located near the riverside about 800m from the Eiffel Tower.

A huge conference hotel with more than 750 rooms. UGCP with lift access. Height restriction 1.85m. Taxi drop-off outside.

The main hotel entrance is via a revolving door, with a conventional door on either side. A ramp to the left bypasses the +1 step. Inside, the main route is via escalators to the reception area. These are bypassed by going to the right, through the (automatic) blue doors and across part of the route to the UGCP. A staff member will take you up to reception in a service lift (D130 W200 L150).

Inside there are six lifts serving all thirty floors, but the GF exit level can only be accessed by a staff member with a key (presumably this is a security measure).

There are seventeen adapted rooms, all with double beds, but some have a connecting room. We saw room 1317. There was a ridge/lip at the doorway (D85). There was ample room (W175) alongside the bed. The bathroom had a toilet with ST120 SH50, and a wheel-in shower. The shower had two outward-opening doors and a movable stool. The shower doors, however, are an inflexible arrangement, and a movable curtain would have been much better.

Apart from the hassle at the entrance, the hotel facilities including lounge, restaurant/s and bar can all be reached step-free.

A hotel/hostel to the east of the city, near Porte Bagnolet and the blvd Périphérique. It was built for disabled people who participate in various competitive sports. It is adjacent to the Handisports centre with a wide range of sports facilities. There is surface parking for about ten vehicles, with additional BB spaces just outside. Thus minibus parking is possible.

It has been designed to cater for disabled visitors, and offers all the basic facilities giving extremely good value. Step free entrance leading to reception and a bar. This has a counter at wheelchair height. There are wheelchair toilets on the GF (D70+ ST70+). Lifts (D150 W150 L300) to all floors. Self-service restaurant in the basement which can be slightly cramped if there are a lot of chair users. There are a hundred rooms, ALL of which are wheelchair accessible, with D85, bathroom D77, ST70+, and all with a wheel-in shower. Rooms are for two, three or four people. In the four-bed rooms the shower and toilet are separate.

The facilities for both chair users and disabled walkers are excellent.

Advanced booking is strongly advised, as it is sometimes booked out by people pursuing and playing various sports. We have stayed there several times, and have been well looked after.

Citadines Apart'Hotels

Citadines are a chain of apartment hotels which provide self-catering facilities.

Most have 'apartments' for those with reduced mobility, suitable for three to four people although some have 'studios' which are smaller and only have one fold-down sofa-bed. The studios occupy about 25m<sup>2</sup> while the apartments have an area of some 38m<sup>2</sup>.

None have wheel-in showers and the level of adaptation is limited.

They provide breakfast, but do not have a restaurant for other meals. Most have parking, and several are in excellent locations, including two in 75001, one in the blvd St Germain, one near the Eiffel Tower and one in Montmartre.

See further details at www.citadines.com

Contact details: Tel: 0800 376-3898 (free in the UK)

Central reservation Tel: +33 1 41 05 79 08.

e-mail: enquiry@the-ascott.com, and it is possible to e-mail each hotel directly.

Note that (as with most other accommodation) it does not seem to be possible to reserve the adapted rooms by using the website on-line reservation service.

We found it quite difficult to get information about Citadines, and when we contacted their office to ask for more data they told us “we do not wish to participate in your programme”, which seemed slightly unfriendly! However, survey teams subsequently stayed in two of the hotels (the ones in Montmartre, and near the Eiffel Tower) and we visited and surveyed two others. In the ones we used, we were well looked after, although we would comment that the ‘adaptations’ for disabled guests had not been particularly well thought through.

We think that all the central Citadines have step-free or single step access and a lift, but would advise you to check this for the ones we have not visited.

The main central Apart’hotels are at:

Citadines Louvre, 6 rue de Richelieu, 75001. Two adapted apartments, one studio. No CP. Very central.

Citadines Les Halles, 4 rue des Innocents, 75001. Six adapted apartments. CP nearby. Very central.

Citadines Opéra, 18 rue Favart, 75002. Seven adapted apartments. CP. Very central.

Citadines St-Germain-des-Prés. Thirteen adapted apartments. CP. Ideal for the Left Bank.

Citadines Opéra Vendôme, 2 rue Edouard VII, 75009. Four adapted studios. CP. Ideal for the shops.

Citadines Tour Eiffel. Seven adapted apartments. CP. Some 800m from the Tower.

Citadines Trocadéro, 29 bis rue Saint-Didier, 75116. Six adapted apartments. CP. Just 300m from the Palais de Chaillot.

Citadines Montmartre. Four adapted apartments. CP. A lively spot at the bottom of the hill.

There are several other Citadines, including ones at Austerlitz, Place d’Italie, Montparnasse, République and between Bastille and Nation.

We include a detailed description of two that we stayed in (Montmartre and Tour Eiffel), together with the description of two that were visited

Located at the end of ave Rachel, which is a dead end (rue sans issue) off the blvd Clichy and near the Cimetière de Montmartre. It is well situated for the restaurants and night life at the bottom of the Montmartre hill, but is about 1km from the funicular which goes near to the Sacré-Cœur. Flat entrance. The GF includes the reception (with friendly English-speaking staff), breakfast area, toilets, phones, lifts, and some of the apartments together with a TV area (+1 step, on the right past reception), and internet area reached via +4.

The lifts (both D80 W100 L130) serve the UGCP, on three levels, and floors 0 to 8. The GF is level 0. There are two BB spaces in the CP: space 141 on level minus one and space 180 on level minus two. Also on level minus one are some token-operated washing machines.

The GF apartment we stayed in (Room 5) had two rooms separated by sliding doors. One included a double bed, and the other was a dining/sitting room with a single sofa-bed. This had a TV and a table with three movable chairs (one was stored in the cupboard by the entrance, which also housed a safe and ironing board). There was a small, well-equipped kitchen although it was not adapted in any way for a chair user. The bathroom had limited side transfer space alongside the toilet and a conventional bath without supporting handrails. All the doors were 80cm wide or greater. Our chair user was able to move around everywhere reasonably easily.

The GF toilets (D90, very heavy) are located down a corridor to the left of the main entrance and have one unadapted cubicle and one unisex wheelchair/adapted cubicle (D90 inward opening, ST100 SH52). The breakfast area is step free, with movable chairs and tables and a serving bar of H90.

Situated just east of the ave du Commerce, next to a McDonalds. It is about 800m from the Eiffel Tower. Parking is available.

Step free entrance, leading to reception, a small lounge area with TV and sofas, and the two lifts (D83 W102 L132). We stayed in room 202 on the second floor. An entrance door (D92) led into the hallway, which we found to be a little small for wheelchair manoeuvring, although we managed. All the doors were >75cm wide.

Light switches in the three rooms had been lowered to H90.

The kitchen/lounge room had a sofa bed, chair, coffee table (H46), and large table (H77) with two chairs, and a TV and hifi system. There were many electrical points around the room. The kitchen area was not very convenient for a chair user. The surface (H91) included a hob and sink. Above the hob was the microwave oven (H150), and the dishwasher was underneath. The fridge was at floor level.

The bedroom had a double bed, with a 160cm gap one side, and 50cm the other.

The bathroom had an outward opening door (D77). The bath was unadapted except for a handrail each side. The basin in the middle was a little wobbly and did not inspire much confidence for use as a support. The toilet had plenty of side transfer space.

This is well signposted from the bottom of the escalator. There are also public (though less than salubrious) lifts at either end of the walkway, which also lead to street level and the UGCP: the one at the right hand end was out of order, and looked as if it had been for some considerable time.

Torcy

There are two good value opportunities for accommodation at Torcy. Located in the Centre Commercial close to the RER station (the hotel leaflet says 50m to the station, but 300-400m would be more accurate!). It provides inexpensive accommodation with a relatively spacious surface CP outside and adapted rooms with a wheel-in shower and twin beds. Mister Bed is a bit like the ETAP chain providing basic (but good) facilities, and a breakfast room.

The RER station provides (in principle) a good link to Paris, one way, and to Disneyland Paris the other. A guide user recommended the hotel in 2007 and used the train to get to and from the city centre, but when we visited in August one of the three necessary lifts for making a return journey was hors service (see our comments about using the RER in the chapter on Getting around).

Just behind the hotels, parallel with the CP and about 150m away, is the promenade du 7eme Art which is lined with restaurants together with a few shops. We checked two of the restaurants, El Rancho (le restaurant Tex Mex) and Courtepaille. Both had step-free access and a wheelchair toilet (D80 ST90 SH44/50).

Disneyland Paris hotels

The Disneyland hotels we saw only had rooms with a double bed (some had a single sofabed as well), and none had a wheel-in shower.

They are, of course, conveniently located for making visits to the Disneyland parks. The hotels are themselves physically big, with the possibility of quite long distances from reception to your room, and then to the various facilities.

We had problems in getting information about the Disney facilities. This seemed to be associated with the fact that there is a large and fragmented bureaucracy. We did try quite hard over a period of several months, but no one was prepared to answer our questions.

We were told that there are just over a hundred adapted rooms, including six bungalows at the Davy Crocket campsite. Some adapted rooms have two double beds, and interconnecting rooms, convenient for family use. We were also told that there is only one adapted minibus to take guests to and from the hotel and the park entrances.

Our experience has been that it is difficult to get beyond the person answering the phone and taking bookings who no doubt means well, but has no detail of access related issues. That is why we have included the telephone and fax numbers of the individual hotels as you may want to get information from someone who actually works there.

The price indications here are based on two-night packages and most of these include entry tickets. Prices vary quite a lot, depending on the time of year. They tend to increase during the school holidays, and possibly when schools have half-terms.

The hotels are sited relatively close to the Park. The one nearest to the entrance is the big Disneyland Hotel, the next nearest is the New York, which is described as being a ten minute walk away, and then the others are a fifteen to twenty minute walk. All the hotels can be found via www.disneylandparis.com but the descriptions mainly relate to the hotel themes and not to practical access issues.

Youth hostels

If you want a really cheap place to stay, then it's worth considering an Auberge de Jeunesse. Although most of them do not have accessible rooms we found two that do, although even these present some challenges.

Auberge de Jeunesse D'Artagnan

80 rue Vitruve 75020

Tel: 01 40 32 34 56 Fax: 01 40 32 34 55

website: www.hihostels.com e-mail: artainfos@hotels-in.com

40m from junction with rue de Balkans. Hilly area. Staff may allow parking in delivery bay outside; otherwise parking is on-street only, and probably quite difficult as the surrounding streets are narrow. There is a BB space about 130m uphill towards blvd Davout, but at the time of our survey this was blocked by a locked barrier.

Entrance +11 steps, but there is a ramped alternative to the left of the main entrance that will be opened on request. It is quite a steep climb. There are two lifts, one (D68 W100 L120) and the other (D75 W110 L150) which goes to the basement where the bar and meeting room are. The second lift was hors service when we visited. Step free access to the restaurant on the GF: the bar is -15 if the lift still isn't fixed. The rooms are hostel-style with from two to nine beds. On the first floor opposite the lifts, there is a wheelchair toilet (D70 ST100 SH50). There's a shower in the same room with a small slightly sunken shower tray [2cm down] and a fold-down seat. They are planning to provide a second wheelchair toilet in a new block on the GF.

On the corner of the two roads. The hostel is about 200m outside the Périphérique (Porte de Pantin) and near La Villette. No CP but on-street parking close by. The area is flat. Entrance on rue Jean-Baptiste Clement has +3 steps, with a temporary ramp to the reception and guest kitchen. One adapted three-bed ground floor room with a single bed and bunk bed. Access is through a separate entrance from the street about 30m to the right of the main entrance, which bypasses +5 – 4 steps within the building. The room has D80; bathroom D80 ST 200+ SH50 with a wheel-in shower. The breakfast room is adjacent. The hostel has a policy of not taking unaccompanied disabled guests, and as there is only one adapted room, you are advised to book well in advance.

Camp sites

While camping certainly isn't everyone's cup of tea, given reasonable weather it can provide really inexpensive accommodation, and a great deal of freedom.

Camping du Bois de Boulogne ****

2 allée du Bord de l'Eau, 75016

Tel: 01 45 24 30 00 Fax: 01 42 24 42 95

websites: www.campingparis.fr www.hotelparispleinair.com e-mail: paris@campingparis.fr

The campsite is located on the edge of the Bois de Boulogne, alongside the Seine. It is just north of the pont de Suresnes. The site is around 200m across, and stretches for nearly a kilometre along the riverside. It provides 435 pitches, as well as 75 mobile homes (each with +3 steps and no handrails to get to the door. None of these appeared to be adapted for easier access). The pitches have variable levels of 'confort' with the most expensive having a power supply, drinking water and a usable drain for waste.

The website has quite good information, but if you're thinking of going there, ask them to send you the Informations booklet which has good site plans and other data not on the website.

The reception is on the right immediately inside the entrance, +3 steps from the road, bypassed by a ramp that starts 15m to the left. Maps of the site can be picked up from here.

To the left of reception is a restaurant, with step-free access from the road, which has movable tables and chairs outside. It was closed at the time of our visit.

There is a mini-supermarket immediately opposite the reception building, +1 step to a gravel pavement and then +3 from the front, bypassed by a ramp that leads from the back of the right-hand side of the building.

The roads and paths in the campsite are a mixture of smooth tarmac and rough, gravelly earth, with bevelled 6cm kerbs at some junctions. There is on-site parking available for campers.

Two identical shower blocks are marked on the map. There is a +6cm bevelled step from the path, then a ramp bypasses +2 steps to mens and womens washrooms either side of some outdoor washbasins. Both have D140 with a [3cm] lip at the entrance and in each there is an adapted washroom D78 with a wheelchair toilet (D70+ ST80 SH52) and a wheel-in shower with a fold-down seat 49cm high.

If you're wanting to use public transport, bus no 244 (from stop "Les Moulins - Camping") should have a ramp, and the tram line T2 goes to la Défense from stop "Suresnes-Longchamp". Both are listed by Infomobi as being wheelchair accessible.

Camping Paris-Est

blvd des Alliés, 94507 Champigny sur Marne

Tel: 01 43 97 43 97 Fax: 01 43 89 07 94

website: www.campinginparis.fr e-mail: champigny@campingparis.fr

This site is run by the same people as the one in the Bois de Boulogne, and may well have adapted toilet and shower. We tried e-mailing to check, but have received no reply.

Camping les Prés

Chemin des Prés, 77880, Grez sur Loing

Tel/fax: 01 64 45 72 75 e-mail: camping-grez@wanadoo.fr

While it's a long way out of Paris (it's about 10km due south of Fontainebleau, just off the A6), the campsite provides accessible facilities and a rather different ambience from, for example, the Bois de Boulogne. If you're not sure exactly where they are, write off and they'll send you a map and leaflet.

Some uneven surfaces, but most of the paths are tarmac or concrete.

There's a [4cm] lip into the shop. Two plots are reserved for disabled campers. The shower/toilet block has adapted facilities with a wheelchair toilet (D90 ST100+ SH50) and a wheel-in shower with a fold-down seat. The key for these is kept at reception.
